The 45th Terribly British Day, held in the Queanbeyan Park, was again a huge success, with a large crowd enjoying the first car and bike show to held since the Covid 19 virus interrupted our lives.

The event team had an approved Service NSW Covid 19 plan in place, QR codes, sign in sheets and hand sanitizer around the venue.

The rain the night before didn't create any problems for the venue, although the unusually cooler weather and gusty winds made things a bit fresh during the day (Terribly British).

About 230 cars, 30 motorcycles and one tractor, were on display around stunning Queanbeyan Park, later in the afternoon a cricket game kicked off in Brad Haddon Oval, again very British Sunday indeed.

The Special guest on the day, Victor the Viking Canberra Raiders Mascot, enjoyed strolling through the many marques on display. Victor does like solid English stuff, just like the English Canberra Raiders Rugby League contingent.
